

This CPD seminar entitles you to 1 formal CPD point. Please be aware you are required to manage your own CPD records. We will provide you with your participation certificate and answer sheet once you have attended the full seminar.

HYDRATION IN THE WORKPLACE SPECIFICATION CONSIDERATIONS 2020

Proudly supported by

- 1. In relation to a boiling & chilled unit is a Wels rating relevant.
- 2. What are the three (3) actions of a triple action water filter?
- 3. What are the two (2) key factors to consider when choosing a plumbed in boiling and/or chilled water product
- 4. According to ASNZS3500 what is the maximum allowable water pressure in a building?
- 5. On slide 30 we saw accessible design option for a kitchen
 - i): What is the maximum distance allowed from the front of the Bench to the Centre of the Tap?
 - ii): Which standard would you reference to confirm your answer to part i)?
- 6. List three (3) key things you must consider when installing an under-bench boiling & chilled water appliance.

At the end of this panel, attendees will be able to:

- a) Select efficient products meeting the requirements of the WHS Act
- b) Explain how water filters work and describe their attributes
- c) Apply the energy efficiency principles as required by the National Construction Code
- d) Recognise the plumbing requirements of Australian Standards for installation
